How the Ingredients in Dynamic Inflamm-Eze Work

Dietary supplementation with a broad-spectrum mix of macro- and micronutrients is often cited in research as a critical component in promoting overall health and supporting healthy inflammatory markers in the body.*^{1,2,3,4}

The foundation of Dynamic Inflamm-Eze is a balanced ratio of protein, carbohydrates, and fats. The vitamins and minerals support a healthy diet by filling nutritional gaps.² The research cited herein specifically shows that supplementation with vitamins A, C, D, E, and B12 along with minerals iron and zinc, play a key role in promoting overall healthy immune function and healthy inflammatory markers in the body.^{5,6,7}

The amino acids in the formula promotes a healthy gastrointestinal tract by promoting and supporting healthy oxidative stress.⁸ Research shows that excessive oxidative stress may play a role in inflammation within the gastrointestinal tract.⁹ The BCAAs provide further support by promoting healthy muscle protein synthesis to reduce fatigue and soreness.

The antioxidants included in the formula provide a potent powerhouse of micronutrients and anti-oxidative properties to support a healthy body.⁹ Each antioxidant plays its own critical role in promoting overall health. The research particularly shows evidence that turmeric root extract, ginger root extract and cat's claw bark powder promote overall well-being by supporting healthy inflammatory markers in the body, including the gastrointestinal tract.*^{10,11,12}

Turmeric root extract has undergone extensive clinical research to reveal its ability to act as a free radical scavenger and promote healthy cell reactions to oxidative stress.¹⁰ Centuries of use and modern clinical research show its powerful properties in promoting overall health and well-being. Quercetin also acts as an antioxidant in the body by scavenging free radicals.¹³ Together, turmeric root extract and quercetin promote powerful antioxidant capacity and support healthy inflammatory markers in the body.
